Land of the Midnight Sun.

To many there is always something peculiarly attractive about the Polar regions; and what has been written in regard to explorations into that unknown zone, their difficulties and dangers, has only served to increase the interest and intensify the fascination of readers of narratives concerning the search for the North Pole. This land of the midnight sun has recently been brought prominently before the world by the dispute in reference to Wrangel Land, the search for the Jeannette, and the discoveries made by Lieutenant Schwatka, the daring young officer of the Third United States Cavalry, who found the remains of the famous and fated Franklin expedition. In his book on the travels and explorations which led up to the discoveries, Mr. Gilder, the second in command of Lieutenant Schwatka's expedition, writes as follows on the midnight sun: "We were beginning to get used to the phenomena of the Arctic, not the least among which is the 'midnight sun.' It is difficult for one who has not witnessed it himself to understand the meaning of this portent. The idea of the long Arctic night seems to be much more generally comprehended. Nearly all writers upon the subject, whether those who have themselves experienced its effects, or those whose knowledge is derived from study, dwell with great force on the terrible depressing effect upon the physical organization of natives of the median zones caused by the long Arctic night whenever brought within its influence. Though much less has been written or said concerning the interminable day, its effects are almost as deleterious upon the stranger as the prolonged night. Indeed, to the sojourner in high latitudes, the day is much more appreciable, for at no point yet visited by man is the darkness the total darkness of night throughout the entire day, where the 'midnight sun' makes the night like noon-day. Even when the sun passes below the horizon at its upper culmination, the daylight is as intense as at noon in lower latitudes, when the sun's disk is obscured by thin clouds. The long twilight in the north, where the sun's apparent path around the earth varies so little in latitude at its upper and lower culminations, takes some of the edge off of the prolonged night at the highest latitude ever attained by the Arctic explorer; but there is nothing to relieve the 'long, long, weary day' of its full power upon the system. There (in the north), in the spring, the sun never sets. There is no morning and no night. It is one continuous day for months. At first it seems difficult to understand this strange thing in nature. One never knows when to sleep. The world seems to be entirely wrong, and man grows nervous and restless. Sleep is driven from his weary eye-lids, his appetite fails, and all the disagreeable results of protracted vigils are apparent. But gradually he becomes used to this state of affairs, devises means to darken his tent, and once more enjoys his hour of rest. In fact he learns how to take advantage of the new arrangement, and when traveling pursued his journey at night, or when the sun is lowest, because then he finds the frost that hardens the snow a great assistance in sledging."

Destruction of a Historical Temple.

The recent announcement by telegraph, of a serious riot in Canton, China, and the destruction of the "Temple of Longevity," gave news of quite a remarkable event. The "Temple of Longevity," or Cheung-Show-Sz, as the Chinese call it, is one of the oldest and most notable in that great city. It contains a colossal figure of Buddha in a recumbent posture, and is a shrine of prayer for long life. Not only is it noted for the extent and number of its halls and altars, but for the rare beauty of its gardens, the variety of its trees and many colored flowers. These surround fish-ponds and sinuous paths leading to pavilions, forming all in all a panorama of oriental luxuriance. Mandarins of distinction staying temporarily in Canton, often rent a range of buildings fronting this garden. The priests (bonzes) of this temple have a reputation for superior learning, but like most Buddhist priests are believed to be quite lax in keeping their vows of celibacy. Buddha enjoined that monks and nuns should live apart, but it is well known that they do not keep this injunction. The priests for the most part, as well as the nuns, are from the lower and mendicant ranks of the people. They enter the monasteries only as an indolent means of livelihood, and not that they are imbued or care for the lofty teachings of Buddha. The Chinese people, high and low, are so well aware of this, and have come to look upon this immorality of monastic life with such stolid indifference, as to make it a most singular event to mob and destroy a great and ancient temple, like that of "Longevity," for the reason that the priests and nuns are guilty of the vice of non-celibacy. Is there to be a mighty upheaval in Buddhism? Has some great reformer in that wonderful church organization arisen to restore the ancient faith and teaching of Shakyamuni Gautama Buddha? It has been given out not unfrequently recently in Asia, "that Buddhism is again to begin a new career of purification and conquest." This rising against an evil long tolerated indicates a movement which may mean more than the mere ebullition of a day. China moves slowly, with all the slowness of an immobile race, and those who hope for growth are so often disappointed, that any movement to break up the rottenness of centuries is a sign of progress in this remarkably interesting people.—Cincinnati Commercial.

An Aeolian Harp.

The Aeolian harp, the invention of which is ascribed to Athanasius Kircher, who lived in the seventeenth century, is a simple musical instrument, the sounds of which are produced by the vibration of strings moved by wind. It may be composed of a rectangular box made of thin boards, five or six inches deep and about the same width, and of a length sufficient to extend across the window it is to be set at, so that the breeze coming in can sweep over it. Sometimes its strings are made as follows: At the top of each end of the box a strip of wood is glued about a half inch in height; the strings are then stretched lengthwise across the top of the box, and may be either catgut or wire. For the purpose of making a fine-toned harp, the strings should be tuned in unison by means of pegs constructed to control their tension, as in the case of a violin. The instrument is then ready to be placed at the window, which, when partly raised, will admit a current of air, and this passing over the strings produces very pleasant sounds which vary with the breeze. It receives its name from Aeolus, the god or ruler of the winds.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

MONDAY EVENING, JAN. 30, 1882.

Our meddlesome contemporary of the Republican is never contented with himself unless stirring up some rumpus. When utterly confounded and worsted by his Democratic contemporaries, he rushes upon society at large and finding he makes no headway in removing its inveterate prejudices to negro social equality, and other abominable sentiments, he turns and deals his blows indiscriminately at all mankind. He has lately pitched into one of his own party leaders, the only republican who has a seat in congress from Kentucky, the Hon. John D. White, and deals him some severe and merciless blows. Like all the antagonists whom the Republican has waked up, the mountain boss was ready for the affray and returned him about as rough a blow as well could have been aimed at him. Congressman White was so indignant at the uncivil treatment he received from the editor of the Republican, that he complained to the Secretary of the Treasury at Washington, of the abuse, the paper had heaped upon him and asked that F. W. Archibald, the head of the firm which controls that paper, should be dismissed from his place as Clerk in the Sixth Auditor's office. At this Mr. Pennywitt, the managing editor took great offense, and wrote Mr. White a characteristic letter of complaint. Mr. White treats this letter most contemptuously. He relies upon a postal card in a curt and sharp manner. It is addressed to the firm F. W. Archibald & Co., as follows.

"WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan'y 23d, 1882."

DEAR SIRS: A friend by the name of Pennywitt connected with your concern has written me what purports to be the views of the Maysville Republican. If you like call & take a chew of it. Please take not umbrage.

I am not mad. It is to the redeeming of the 11th Cong. Ky. Dist. I am looking; and have no time to give to dead-beats from Ohio.

Very sincerely,
JOHN D. WHITE."

The language of this communication is rough and coarse, but fully up in style to that of the ordinary Kentucky Republican boss. The Republicans who sent Mr. White to congress as their representative will no doubt read it with the deepest interest.

Dr. Frazier's Root Bitters.

Frazier's Root Bitters are not a dram-shop whisky beverage, but are strictly medicinal in every sense. They act strongly upon the liver and kidneys, keep the bowels open and regular, make the weak strong, heal the lungs, build up the nerves and cleanse the blood and system of every impurity.

For dizziness, rush of blood to the head, tending to apoplexy, dyspepsia, fever and ague, dropsy, pimples and blotches, serofulous humors and sores, tetter, ring worm, white swelling, erysipelas, sore eyes and for young men suffering from weakness or debility caused from imprudence, and to females in delicate health, Frazier's Root Bitters are especially recommended.

Dr. Frazier: I have used two bottles of your Root Bitters for dyspepsia, dizziness, weakness and kidney disease, and they did me more good than the doctors and all the medicine I ever used. From the first dose I took I began to mend, and I am now in perfect health, and feel as well as I ever did. I consider your medicine one of the greatest blessings.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

MONDAY EVENING, JAN. 30, 1882.

OUR city's like a tented field,
Such as we see in wars.
For everybody's baring arms,
Or showing up their scars,
And then, the Esculapian band,
In fact, the corps at large,
Is getting ready now to make
A quarter-dollar charge.

THE river is rising fast to-day.

PINK-EYE has appeared at Mt. Gilead.

THE lenten season begins this year on 22d of February.

MR. JOHN B. FEE, of Augusta, died at Covington, a few days ago.

MICHAEL O'NEIL, of Manchester, intends to raise fifty acres of tobacco next season.

DR. LAKE BARNES, a prominent physician of Paris, died at that place on Sunday.

DR. H. K. ADAMSON has recently vaccinated about three hundred and fifty persons in this city.

If there is any faith to be placed in signs, the Hon. John D. White will have a good time in "redeeming the 10th Ky., Congressional District."

THE report that the hemp crop of Bourbon, Fayette and Woodford counties, was very much damaged by the prolonged wet weather is pronounced untrue.

THE Harrison brothers living near Mt.
Gilead, raised the past season, on six acres of land, nine thousand pounds of tobacco, and sold it for $16 a hundred pounds.

THE regular January term of the circuit court expired on Saturday, but the business of the court requiring it, Judge Cole has extended it until Saturday, February 4th.

MESSRS. I. M. LANE and A. Worick, two of our well-known and experienced mechanics, have formed a partnership in the carpenter business. Their advertisement will be found elsewhere.

THE only ice put up in Maysville that we have heard of this season, was by Mr.
John Heiser, of the European Hotel. He secured twenty-six wagon loads of ice about three inches thick. It was put up this month.

MESSRS. J. H. Hall & Co., last week shipped to Louisiana and Texas, a large number of the new sulky plow they are now manufacturing.
This implement is very popular in the South and is widely used in preference to any plow of the kind in the market.

ABOUT six o'clock Friday night the steamer Katie Stockdale, became unmanageable, and went through the wrong span of Beaver bridge near Steubenville, O., tearing off her pilot house and smoke stacks. Three deck-hands jumped overboard and were drowned.

THE demand for Simmons' Medicated Well-Water is rapidly increasing. It is warmly recommended by those who have used it as an infallible cure for dyspepsia.
The names of those who have obtained relief from its use will be furnished upon application to Col. Gns. Simmons, at Aberdeen.

OUR lively, little contemporary, the Mason County Journal, as we learn from
Mr. H. V. Morris' card in the Sunday Morning Call, will not appear again, for reasons satisfactory to the publisher. Mr.
Morris, we are pleased to learn, has secured a lucrative position on one of the Cincinnati dailies. We wish him success.

Progress in the Craft Case—The Bloody Towel Identified by Several Witnesses as Having Been Worn by Wm. Neal on the Night of the Murder.

CATLETSBURG, KY., JAN. 30, 1882.—In the Circuit Court to-day in the case of Ellis Craft, for murder, a number of witnesses were examined for the prosecution.
Mrs. Simons was on the stand and identified Ellis' clothing as the same worn by him about the time the murder was committed.

The bloody towel was exhibited in court.
Deputy United States Marshal Heflin, who was examined, said he never saw the towel used, but would like to have seen it used the last time.

Taylor Davis testified that he found the towel in the corner of a rail fence near Ashland, and Henry Culbertson identified it in court as the one worn by Neal the night of the murder when he left the Iron Works. The towel was also identified by other witnesses.

Another Warning.

Deaths from chloroform and chloral (another variety of chloroform) occur with startling frequency. In Chicago a death is reported from chloroform, in the dentist's chair. The victim in this instance was apparently "in perfect health," and the anesthetic "was administered by a physician who professed to be an expert." Death was almost immediate. The New York Medical Record commenting upon these facts, severely censures "those stupid and defiant" doctors who still continue to take the risk of administering chloroform in simple operations "despite the verdict of the profession to the contrary." If the doctors did it wholly at his own risk it would not be so bad.

Every dentist should set his face against the dangerous practice. It may give an ignorant and mercenary physician an occasional fee, but it will, also, give an unpleasant and unprofitable notoriety to the dentist's chair.

VACCINATION, we are glad to say, has been general in this city, and the good work is still going on. We shall soon be in a condition as a city, to defy the visitation of small-pox.

It is a prevalent error that a good "scar" is ample proof that the system is protected against small-pox. Medical statistics show that this is not the case. There should be no delusion whatever on this point. Hundreds of persons have been vaccinated in this city within the past two weeks. Many of these re-vaccinations will fail, and should be reported at once to the city or county physicians, who are provided with good virus, and if necessary, will reapply the test.

"PEDANTRY consists in the use of words unsuitable to the time, place and company," says the St. Paul Pioneer-Press. Maybe if the Press heard a man at a swell party remark, "You bet your boots it's taffy," it would accuse him of pedantry.—Boston Post.

A NORTHERN man with consumptive tendencies was inquiring about Florida. He met a man who had spent a winter there, and, in the course of begging for information, asked if it was very wet there. "Wet!" was the reply. "Well, I should smile. The only dry thing I found in the State was the cows."

"I THINK," said an old toper, who was consulting a physician about his failing eyesight, "I think it I should wear a pair of goggles they would benefit my eyes, oh?" "Just the thing," replied the physician; "get a pair, by all means, and fasten them tightly over your mouth. That'll fix your eyesight all right."

MITIGATED misery—"Go into the room and bring that cake off the table," said a mother to her son. "It's too dark; I'm afraid to go into the room." "Go right into that room this instant, or I'll go in and bring out the strap." "If—you bring—out the—strap," replied the boy, sobbing, "bring the cake along—too."

JOHN SHUTTLE has abandoned going to the theater altogether. When he wants an evening's enjoyment he hangs his wife's new Rembrandt beaver hat on a gas bracket, sits behind it and looks at it intently. He gets just as much satisfaction as he would by going to the theater, and saves the price of a ticket.

"YES," said a witness, "I remember the defendant's mother crying on the occasion referred to. She was weeping with her left eye—the only one she had—the tears were running down her right cheek." "What!" exclaimed the Judge, "how could that be?" "Please, your Honor," said the witness, "she was awfully cross-eyed."

THE affectionate nature of a pair of geese was alluded to by an eloquent speaker at a dinner table. "I knew these interesting birds in life," said he; "they were model spectacles of connubial bliss; they were lovely and pleasant in their lives, and in their death they were scarcely to be divided, for I smashed the carving knife in the attempt."

LONDON Fun says: "And will you be able to give up those frequent nights at your whist club for the sake of your ducky?" He—"Give them up, my angel! What would I not give up to gain you?" She—"You mean that, really?" He—"Really!" She—"Then I tell you what, dear, when we are married we will put 'no cards' after the announcement in the papers, so as to let your whist-playing friends know what to expect."

NEVER SUSPECTED IT.

A letter on the table lies—
I do not recognize the hand,
And yet my heart is throbbing and There's joy-light in my yearning eyes,
Is it from mother, old and gray,
Or from the little trudging maid
Whose heart I won before I strayed
Out to the mountains, leagues away?
Before I break the seal, I press
My lips upon the envelope,
And oh! a boundless wealth of hope
Is vanished in that soft caress, Peace, uttering heart! Oh soul, I could!
Why should my trembling frame tremble?
My letter comes from Bologna Day!
It is—it is no laundry bill!

A NEW JERSEY man married a woman named Moore and was divorced from her. Then he married a woman named Maynard, but subsequently remarried his first wife. On hearing of his marriage to Maynard, Moore had the second marriage annulled. She died soon after and then he remarried Maynard, the second wife. He has since died and the "other heirs" to his estate are trying to show that the infant born of his first marriage to the Maynard woman is illegitimate. Two Courts have, very naturally, given opposite decisions with several Judges yet to hear from.

EARED seals, like the penguins, seem to be native to the Antarctic lands, whence they have spread toward the north. They are conveyed northward on blocks of ice which are detached by currents, and carried away from the great southern glaciers, in this way colonizing both ice-spheres.

THE SUN.

NEW YORK 1882.

The Sun for 1882, will make its fifteenth annual revolution under the present management, as always, for all, big and little, mean and gracious, contented and unhappy, Republican and Democratic depraved and virtuous, intelligent and obtuse. The Sun's light is for mankind and womankind of every sort, but its genial warmth is for the good, while it pours hot discomfort on the blistering backs of the persistently wicked.

The Sun of 1882 was a newspaper of a new kind. It discarded many of the forms, and a multitude of the superfluous words and phrases of ancient journalism. It undertook to report in a fresh, succinct, unconventional way all the news of the world, omitting no event of human interest, and commenting upon affairs with the fearlessness of absolute independence. The success of this experiment was the success of the Sun.

It effected a permanent change in the style of American newspapers. Every important journal established in this country in the dozen years past has been modelled after the Sun. Every important journal already existing has been modified and bettered by the force of the Sun's example.

The Sun of 1882, will be the same outspoken, truth-telling, and interesting newspaper.

By a liberal use of the means which an abundant prosperity affords, we shall make it better than ever before.

We shall print all the news, putting it into readable shape, and measuring its importance, not by the traditional yardstick, but by its real interest to the people. Distance from Printing House Square is not the first consideration with the Sun. Whenever anything happens worth reporting we get the particulars, whether it happens in Brooklyn or in Pekin.

In politics we have decided opinions; and are accustomed to express them in language that can be understood. We say what we think about men and events. That habit is the only secret of the Sun's political course.

The Weekly Sun gathers into eight pages the best matter of the seven daily issues. An Agricultural Department of the unequalled merit, full market reports, and a liberal proportion of literary, scientific and domestic intelligence complete the Weekly Sun, and make it the best newspaper for the farmer's household that was ever printed.

Who does not know and read like the Sunday Sun, each number of which is a Gondola of interesting literature, with the poetry of the day, prose every line worth reading, news, humor—matter enough to fill a good-sized book, and it is infinitely more varied and interesting than any book, big or little?

If our idea of what a newspaper should be pleases you, send for the Sun.

Our terms are as follows.

For the daily Sun, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year, or including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents per month, or $7.50 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of the Sun is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the Weekly Sun, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.
